Playing in the Street

[doorbell, door open]

Postman: Mail's here mam.

Mother: Oh thank you.

Postman: Uh, I think I saw your son playing in the street.

Mother: Oh, okay.

[door close, doorbell, door open]

Postman: Well, aren't you going to tell him to stop playing in the street?

Mother: What? Restrict my little Bobby? He has the freedom to do whatever he feels like doing.

Postman: But, there are cars driving by, big trucks. He shouldn't play in the street.

Mother: That's his choice. Who are you to judge his actions anyway?

Postman: Mam, I'm concerned about your boy! He could get hurt!

Mother: Don't you impose your values on me. It's judgmental people like you that need to realize that not everyone lives by your standards.

Postman: Don't you care about your little boy?

Mother: Of course I do! I always support his decisions and would never dream of judging him.

[door close]

Announcer: Sometimes, the most loving action is to show someone that what they are doing is wrong. If a friend is making harmful choices, do you care enough to let them know?
