A Bowl of Clam Chowder

Frank: And I'll have a bowl of your Clam Chowder.

Waiter: Thank you sir.

Frank: So as I was saying Bob, what you and I believe about God is different, but that's okay.

Bob: How so?

Frank: Well, what you believe about God is true for you, and what I believe is true for me.

Waiter: Here you go sir.

Frank: Thank you.

Bob: They can't both be true.

Frank: Sure they can. It's all about belief. Wait a minute this isn't Clam Chowder. It's a bowl of water.

Bob: That's okay. Why don't you just believe it's Clam Chowder.

Frank: Because it's not.

Bob: I believe I can smell clams.

Frank: This is bowl of tap water.

Bob: You said that belief is all that matters when it comes to God. If that logic applies to something as important as God, it should work on your soup.

Frank: Regardless of what I believe, this is still going to be a bowl of water.

Bob: Frank, God is as real as that bowl of water. So we have to discover who God really is. We can't just believe what we want to believe about Him.

Frank: Fine. God is God, but this is not soup.

Bob: Yeah. It's for washing your hands in after you eat your order of ribs.
